World's Most Famous Radio 'Ham' Plans Trip

Probably the most widely known radio amateur in the world is Mrs. Dorothy Hall of Springfield, N. Y. During her leisure hours she chats with "hams" all over the world from her powerful home station W2IXY. She is planning a vacation trip to meet some of her friends in Ireland, Denmark, France and other countries. For eight hours a day she operates the New York fire department's short wave station, WNYF.

Blood Plasma From Stone Saves Lives

German Scientists Claim to Have Made New Drug.

EDGEWOOD ARSENAL, MD.—German scientists made synthetic blood plasma from stone during World War II and used it to save thousands of lives, army chemical corps officers revealed.

The Germans produced a drug called periston from acetylene, which in turn was produced by them from limestone and coke. They used the drug as a substitute for blood plasma in the treatment of shock and wounds, and in transfusions. German scientists told American chemical officers that it was used 200,000 times on about 40,000 patients.

The drug is a yellow solid which is dissolved in a solution and inserted into the veins of the patient.

Blood plasma was produced in this country during the war from whole blood, gathered from millions of American donors.

One scientist said the German discovery was all the more amazing because there is no similarity between the structure of a molecule of periston and one of human blood. The chemical officers said samples of periston had been brought to the United States with the formula and had been turned over to American manufacturers for possible use in this country.

More than a dozen other startling medical discoveries by German scientists have been made available to American pharmacists through the department of commerce. One of them is a chemical called aludrine sulfate, which the Germans report they used with great success in the treatment of asthma and allergies. Another is the use of cotton fiber impregnated with activated charcoal as an absorbent dressing for open, draining wounds.

50 Trains a Day Wrecked in U. S.

2,967 Accidents Kill 143 First Two Months Of this Year.

WASHINGTON.—On the average, 50 trains a day are being wrecked or damaged in the United States.

During the first two months of this year, 2,967 train accidents were reported to the Interstate Commerce commission. The toll was 143 persons killed and 2,068 injured.

This is death and destruction at a pace even faster than in the "bad" last year.

For the same two months in 1946 the figures were: 2,733 mishaps, 139 deaths and 2,119 injured.

If the accidents continue at the present rate, this year's toll will top the toll of last year, which included 15,566 crackups, 432 deaths and 20,677 injured.

Some Are Disasters.

Some of the wrecks have been minor, causing only small property damage. But others have been headlined disasters, with great loss of life.

Many of the country's crack trains, presumably carrying the most modern safety equipment, have been involved.

All this has led students of the problem to raise two questions:

—What causes all these crashes?

—What's being done to stop them?

Experts assert that almost all train mishaps result from either carelessness of workmen or faulty equipment. And they find that human errors are more to blame than mechanical failures.

Study of 29 accident reports to Interstate Commerce commission shows that 37 of them, in which 140 were killed and 2,448 were injured, were caused by carelessness of employees.

Only 27, which killed 28 and injured 458, were laid to equipment trouble.

The most common manpower weakness is found to be failure to obey safety signals.

Excessive speed, when rules and common sense alike called for caution, were blamed for 12 accidents. Careless switching resulted in 15 accidents.

As for equipment, the most deadly failure is the broken rail. Nine wrecks of the 89 studied were laid to that cause, with a toll of 13 dead and 214 injured.

Good roads check their rails regularly.

Mechanical Failures.

Three mechanical failures—all at one time—wrecked the Cascade Mirage, a Pullman car of the Pennsylvania's Sunshine Special, near Gallitzin, Pa.

The special stopped at the top of a grade. The Cascade Mirage broke off, rolled downhill three miles and a half and tipped over an embankment.

Investigators said the car broke off because a soft cotter pin had been used to fasten a coupler that wouldn't lock.

What are the railroads doing to cut down the accident toll?

They say they are trying their best, through the most modern devices, which are being put into general use as fast as money, materials and manufacturing capacity permit.

One of these is a signal device in a locomotive cab. It shows conditions in the block in which the locomotive is. If, after entering a clear block, another train intrudes, or a rail breaks, the cab signal changes and the engineer can stop.

This device was shown to have prevented a second wreck on May 1 after steel plates on a freight had ripped the sides of the Pennsylvania's American. One plate, falling to the rails, set the cab signal in an incoming freight, which was brought to a stop. Otherwise the second freight would have piled into the American.

Army Helicopters Are Used In Rescue in Canal Jungle

ALBROOK FIELD, CANAL ZONE.—Army helicopters equipped with special winches have lowered a rescue platoon into the jungles of northwestern Nicaragua in an attempt to save six American aviators, survivors of the crash of a Flying Fortress, the Army disclosed.

The six men were lost in the smoke-infested jungles when all 15 occupants of the B-17 bailed out after one of the motors caught fire. Nine men succeeded in making their way into Managua, the Nicaraguan capital, whence they returned here by plane.

United States to Expand Army Air Bases in Alaska

WASHINGTON. — The United States army air forces announced an $8,125,000 expansion program for "Mile 26" field near Ladd field, Alaska, to base its B-36 super bombers.

Facilities at Whittier Port, Alaska, also will be expanded at a cost of $2,840,845.

Later the AAF revealed plans for construction of a 13 million dollar base for its big strategic bombers in Arcostook county, Me., four miles west of the Canadian border and astride the main aerial route between western Europe and the North American continent.

IN MEMORIAM:

In sad but loving memory of darling mother, Drucilla Martin, who departed this life year ago, July 9, 1946.
Today we are thinking of you dear, who was so kind and Whose smile was as dear as sunshine.
Dear Mother, that someone is

Memories are treasures no one steal,
Death leaves a heartache no can heal,
Some have forgotten, now that have gone,
But we will never forget you matter how long.

For days and nights she bore pain,
To wait for cure but all in
For God alone knew what was
And took her home to give peace and rest.

You have not said good-bye just goodnight.
We smile through our tears and forget to weep,
Knowing our loved ones learn for awhile,
Only to find the blessed peace sleep.

Gone ahead to brighten the
For us to walk some happy
We loved you so, and proud
we too,
To have had such a wonderful mother as you.
Sadly missed by her devoted children and grandchildren.

Conservation Pays Big Cash Dividends

Save the Soil Methods At Purdue Prove Ideal

A soil conservation system combining the teamwork of large amounts of fertilizer, contour farming, manure and deep rooted legumes, not only saves sorely needed rainfall and reduces the loss of soil, organic matter and plant food through runoff, but also promotes greatly increased yields of corn, wheat and hay, according to Glenn Bedell.

More water boosts corn yield.

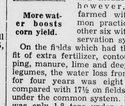

Such a system proved its benefits at the Purdue station. The test was conducted in 12 small fields from 1942 through 1945. All the fields had three-year rotation: corn, wheat and meadow. Six, however, were farmed with common practices; the other six with a conservation system.

On the fields which had the benefit of extra fertilizer, contour cropping, manure, lime and deep rooted legumes, the water loss from runoff for four years was eight inches, compared with 17½ on fields farmed under the common system. Soil loss was only 1.8 tons under conservation against 8.8 tons with the common system. Organic matter losses were 492 and 976 pounds, respectively, while those of nitrogen were 16 and 77 pounds; phosphorus 19 and 62; and potash, 10 and 24 pounds.

Corn yields averaged 92 bushels per acre against 62 bushels on the common fields, in 1942. By 1945 the corn output reached 122 bushels per acre, compared with 71 bushels on the common fields. Wheat yields averaged 25 bushels and 15 bushels.

Turns Rooster Into Good Setting Hen

The application of hormones as an aid in fattening poultry has been carried on for some time. The hormones tried have had the effect of "tenderizing" the flesh of poultry.

Dr. A. V. Nalbandov, University of Illinois, demonstrates success of hormone experiments to Lee Campbell and Ralph Inhoff, officials of Illinois Poultry Improvement association.

The use of prolactin hormones to transform roosters into setting hens has been successfully accomplished at University of Illinois.

Make Cheddar Cheese From Pasteurized Milk

A new method of making American cheddar cheese greatly simplifies the whole operation and enables the average cheesemaker to produce a uniform and high-quality product regularly. The new method uses pasteurized milk, destroyed of undesirable bacteria, to which an active and dependable starter containing only the essential bacteria has been added, and acid and time control.
